EUROPEAN AIR LAW ASSOCIATION (EALA) 27TH ANNUAL CONFERENCE

EUROPEAN AIR LAW ASSOCIATION (EALA) 27TH ANNUAL CONFERENCE

EALA is delighted to invite you to attend its 27th annual conference, to be held in Edinburgh, the capital city of Scotland since at least the 15th century. It is home to the Scottish Parliament which was established in 1999, as well as a renowned centre for legal scholars and practitioners.

EALA's mission

Since 1989, EALA has arranged conferences and seminars in Europe focusing on important legal issues regarding the aviation industry. Over those 27 years EALA has gained international recognition and respect as a leading forum for the discussion of topical developments regarding aviation law, especially from a European perspective. The mission of EALA is, among other things, to:

- serve as the leading and essential association addressing the development of air law in Europe;
- ensure dissemination of information about, and the study of, air law in Europe, and
- be a forum for the exchange of views and provide an opportunity for those interested in European air law to meet each other.

EALA's 27th Annual Conference

Our next annual conference will start off with an update of the various proceedings arising from Pan Am Flight 103 which crashed in 1988 in Lockerbie, approximately 75 miles/110 kilometres south west of Edinburgh. This accident not only resulted in the imposition of political and trade sanctions on Libya, but also civil proceedings in different jurisdictions and criminal proceedings against the terrorists who placed the bomb on board the aircraft. Some families of the victims wish the conviction of one of the terrorists who committed this atrocity to be reviewed. The status of the different proceedings will be clarified by a distinguished representative of the Scottish legal profession. In addition to the sanctions and the criminal proceedings the case resulted in liability claims of historic dimensions (both against the carrier and the Libyan government).

More recent accidents affecting aviation safety will be highlighted in the next session. The world community witnessed during the last year a number of aviation tragedies involving important legal questions. Among them are the MH17 disaster which took place on 17 July 2014, and following which the Dutch Aviation Accident Investigation Board examined the causes of this accident. Its findings are expected to be released a couple of weeks before our annual conference. Another accident concerns flight MH340 whose disappearance in the Indian Ocean is as yet unresolved. Meanwhile the European Aviation Safety Agency (EASA) is preparing measures to prevent accidents such as the one involving Germanwings on 24 March 2015 from happening again. These measures and the surrounding international, European and domestic law context will be explained by prominent experts.

As aircraft are vulnerable, and, unfortunately also attractive assets for terrorists, security measures must be updated from time to time. Thus, security provisions were drawn up not only after the above PanAm flight 103 but also after 9/11 and more recent accidents. The session on aviation security will clarify how to proceed from here in what promises to be a highly topical session. These issues will be discussed by policymakers and legal professionals working in this field.

A brief update on the current status of international negotiations for a global agreement addressing aviation's CO2 emissions will be given.

The operation of unmanned aircraft, commonly referred to as drones, invites a discussion of myriad questions pertaining to their use, the responsibility and civil and criminal liability for such operations, and the application of human rights in case they infringe the personal atmosphere of people. This multifaceted approach will be presented by experts elucidating each of them.

The final session concerns the continuously evolving relationship between airports and airlines. Again, this relationship is marked by, among others, operational, economic, labour related and liability questions. The most distinguished practitioners working in this field will shed an innovative light on these questions from the level of international, European and domestic policy and law.

This topical agenda should attract all those who are involved with European and international aviation, and we look forward to welcoming you in the Signet Library which is one of Edinburgh's finest Georgian buildings, offering a unique and inspiring setting for our deliberations.
